om namo bhagavatē rudrāya ||

Prostitions to Lord rudra(who is the Destroyer of sin and sorrow) om namaste rudra manyava utota isave namah | namaste astu dhanvane bahubhyamuta te namah |

Oh! Rudra Deva! My salutations to your anger and also to your arrows. My salutations to your bow and to the pair of your hands.

yā ta iṣuḥ śivatāmā śivam babhūva te dhanuḥ | śivā śaravyā yā tava tayā no rudra mṛdaya |

Oh! Destroyer! By that arrow of yours, that bow of yours and that quiver of yours which have become the most peaceful, make us happy.

yā te rudra śivā tanūraghorā'pāpakāsinī | tayā nastanuvā śantamayā giriśamtābhicākaśīhi |

Lord Rudra, by that supremely peaceful form of yours which destroys sin, and which is auspicious and blissful, give us the knowledge Supreme.O! Resident of Kailas and Giver of all good.

yāmiṣum giriśanta haste bibharṣyastave | śivām giritra tām kuru mā higṃsīḥ puruṣam jagat |

O! Resident of the Mountains and Giver of all good! O! Protector! Make the arrow you hold in your hand peaceful; do not destroy people or the material world.

śivena vacasā tvā giriśācchāvadāmasi |yathā naḥ sarvamijjagādayakṣmagm sumanā asat |
O! Resident of Mountains! In order that our world of relations and cattle may be prosperous, wholly free from disease and of good mind, we propitiate you with auspicious words.

adhyavocadadhivaktā prathamo daivyo bhiṣak lahiḡśca sarvāñjambhayantsarvāśca yātudhānyaḥ |

Let Him intercede on my behalf and speak in my favor, even Rudra, that foremost one, held high in honor by the gods, the physician. Let him annihilate the enemies of mine like scorpions, snakes, and tigers, and the unseen enemies like the Rakshasas, spirits and demons.

asau yastāmo aruṇa uta babhruḥ sumāṅgalaḥ | ye cemāgm rudrā abhito dikṣu śritāḥ sahasraśo'vaiśāgm heḍa imahe |

This Sun who is copper-red when he arises, then golden-yellow, this highly auspicious and beneficent one is truly Rudra. These other Rudras who are quartered round about in all directions of this earth, may I ward off their anger by my praise.

asau yo'vasarpatī nīlāgrīvo vilohitaḥ | utainam gopā adṛśannadṛśannudahāryaḥ |

Let the blue-necked one render us happy, the one who rises in crimson splendour, whom the cowherds, the water-maidens and all the creatures in the world can see.

utainam viśvā bhūtāni sa dṛṣṭo mṛdayāti naḥ |

Let Him grant Happiness to us.

namo astu nīlāgrīvāya sahasrākṣāya mīḍhuṣe |atho ye aśya sattvāno'ham tebhyo karannamah |

Let my salutations be to the blue-throated one, who has a thousand eyes. I also bow to his followers.

pramuñca dhanvanastvamubhayorārtni yorjyām |yāśca te hasta iśavaḥ parā tā bhāgavo
vapa |

Bhagavan Rudra, loosen the string from both ends of your bow and put into your quiver the arrows in your hands.

(The Possession of the following six completely is called Bhaga-power, valour, fame, wealth, knowledge, and renunciation. Rudra has got all of them and hence He is addressed as bhagawan).

Sri Sathya Sai Books and Publications Trust, Prasanthi Nilayam

avata₁tya dhanust₁vagm̄ sahasrākṣa₁ śateṣudhe | niśīrya śalyānām mukhā śivo naḥ sumanā₁
bhava |

You having a thousand eyes, and bearing a hundred quivers, after loosening your bow, kindly blunt the edges of your shafts. Assume your peaceful and auspicious Siva form and become well-intentioned towards us.

vijyam̄ dhanuḥ kapardino₁ viśalyo₁ bāṇavāgm̄ utal aneśannasyeṣava₁ ābhurasya₁
niṣam̄gathiḥ |

Let the bow of Kapardin, Rudra of the matted locks, be without its string. Let there be no arrows in His quiver. Let His arrows lose their capacity to strike and pierce. Let the sheath of his sword be not removed.

yā te hetirmiḍhuṣṭama₁ haste babhūva₁ te dhanuḥ | tayāsmān, viśvatastvamāyākṣmayā₁
paribbhujā |

O! Supreme lord who showers mercy! Protect us from all worldly troubles with the weapons and bow in your hands, which are not for hurting us.

namaste astvāyudhāyānātātāya dhr̥ṣṇavē | ubhābhyām₁uta te namo₁ bāhubhyām̄ tava₁
dhanvane |

Salutations to your sturdy and potent weapons, and also to both your hands and your bow.

pari te dhanvano hetirasmānvṛṇaktu viśvataḥ | atho ya iśudhistavāre asmānidhehi tam

Let the arrow of Your bow spare us in all ways. And place your quiver of arrows far away from us.

namaste astu bhagavanviśveśvarāyā mahādevāyā tryambakāyā tripurāntakāyā trikāgnikālāyā kālāgnirudrāyā nīlakaṇṭhāyā mṛtyuñjayāyā sarveśvarāyā sadāśivāyā śrīmanmahādevāyā namaḥ ||1||

Let my salutations be to that great God who is the Lord of the universe; the great God the three eyed one, the destroyer of Tripura, the extinguisher of the trika fire and the fire of death, the blue-necked one, the victor over death, the lord of all, the ever peaceful one, the glorious God of gods.

ye anneṣu vīvidhyānti pātreṣu pibato janān |

Those Rudras who afflict people through their food and drink; who control the supply of food stuffs, we shall cause the strings of their bows to be loosened, and the bows themselves to be deposited thousands of yojanas far away from us.

ye pathām pathirakṣaya ailabṛdā yavyudhaḥ |

Those Rudras who are the protectors of the pathways, the givers of food, who fight with enemies, we shall cause the strings of their bows to be loosened, and the bows themselves to be deposited thousands of yojanas far away from us.

ye tīrthāni praacaranti sṛkāvānto niṣaṅgiṇāḥ | |

Those Rudras who haunt the sacred places wearing short daggers and long swords, we shall cause the strings of their bows to be loosened, and the bows themselves to be deposited thousands of yojanas far away from us.

ya etāvantaśca bhūyāḡmsaśca diśo rudrā vitasthīre |

Those Rudras so far mentioned, and over and above them, who have entered the quarters and occupied them, we shall cause the strings of their bows to be loosened, and the bows themselves to be deposited thousands of yojanas far away from us.

teṣāḡm sahasrayojane'vadhanvāni tanmasi | |

Sri Sathya Sai Books and Publications Trust, Prasanthi Nilayam

Those Rudras who are on this earth, to whom food turns into shafts, I bow to them with my speech. With my ten fingers joined, I bow to them with my body facing all quarters, I bow to them with my mind. May they render me happy. Oh Rudras, to whom we bow! I consign him whom we hate and he who hates us, into your yawning mouths.

namo rudrebhyo ye pṛthivyām ye'ntarikṣe ye divi yeṣāmannam vāto varṣamiṣāvastebhyo daśa prācīrdaśa dakṣiṇā daśa pratīcīrdaśoḍhāvastebhyo namaste nō mṛdayantu te yaṁ dviṣmo yaśca nō dveṣti taṁ vo jambhē dadhāmi

We render obeisance to those myriad manifestations of Rudra whose weapons are food, wind and rain, who exist in the earth, ether and heaven. Prostrations to the east, to the south, to the west and to the north and upward. Let them render us happy. whoever hates us and whomsoever we hate, consigning them into your wide open mouth.

tryambakam yajāmahe sugandhim puṣṭivardhanam | urvārukamīva bandhanāmṛtyormukṣīya mā'mṛtāt |

We worship the fragrant three eyes One, who confers ever increasing prosperity; let us be saved from the hold of death, like the cucumber freed from its hold; let us not turn away from liberation.

yo rudro agnau yo apsu ya ośadhīṣu yo rudro viśvā bhuvanā vivesā tasmai rudrāya namo Prostrations to that rudra, who exists in fire, water, herbs and all the worlds.

ye te sahasramayutaṁ pāsā mṛtyo martyāya hantave | tān, yajñasya māyayā sarvānava yajāmahe |

O! Destroyer ! We remove through our good deeds all those bonds of yours, myriad in number, which are meant to afflict all that is mortal.

mṛtyave svāhā mṛtyave svāhā |

Let this offering be to the Destroyer (of sin and sorrow)

prāṇānām granthirasi rudro mā viśāntakaḥ | tenānenāpyāyāsva | namo rudrāya viṣṇave mṛtyūrme pāhi |

O Rudra, you hold the strings of the life breaths. Pray, don't take away my life. Be pleased with my offerings and cost you r benevolent and auspicious sight on me. Let this offering be to the Destroyer (on sin and sorrow). Prostrations to the all-pervading Lord Rudra. Save me from earthly bondage.

tamu ṣṭuhi yaḥ sviṣuḥ sudhanvā yo viśvasya kṣayati bheṣajasya | yakṣvāmahe saumanasāya rudraṁ namobhirdevamasuraṁ duvasya |

Attain great mental peace by worshipping that rudra who with good bow and arrows is the source of remedy for all worldly ills, the destroyer of sorrow, who augments the life span and who exists in the form of knowledge.

ayam me hasto bhagavānayaṁ me bhagavattaraḥ | ayam me viśvabheṣajo'yagm śivābhīmarśanaḥ |

This hand of mine which has touched the lord's idol, is indeed blessed, this is very very lucky. This is the remedy for all the worldly ills.
